DEATH.

A career of great and varied activity came to a close Tuesday afternoon when Rev. Howard A. M. Henderson, formerly of Paris, and well known Methodist clergyman, author and veteran of two wars, died in Christ Hospital in Cincinnati after a long illness of diabetes. A development of the disease, hardening of the arteries, was the immediate cause of death.

The more than 75 years of Rev. Henderson's life was crowded with notable achievements and endeavors. The diversity of his activities and his unflinching success stamped him as one of the men who made history both for his church and his country.

The last time Dr. Henderson met his many friends among the clergy of Cincinnati was on the occasion of his seventy-fifth anniversary on August 15, in Glendale. It was immediately after that event that he became ill and entered the hospital.

The body of Dr. Henderson will lie in state in Wesley Chapel from 2 to 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Gervaise Roughton, an intimate friend of the deceased, will then conduct the services, assisted by Bishop David H. Moore, Rev. D. Lee Aultmann, of Trinity church and Rev. D. H. Jamison, Presiding Elder of the district.

Rev. Roughton was at the bedside of his friend until midnight Monday and Dr. Henderson, calm in the knowledge of the approaching end, quietly discussed his funeral arrangements requesting that Rev. Roughton preside. On Friday the remains will be buried in Frankfort, Ky., with services by the Masons and Odd Fellows of that city.

Howard Andrew Millett Henderson, D. D., LL. D., was born in August 1836, at Paris, Bourbon county, Ky. His father was Howard M. Henderson, a native of New Hampshire, who had come to Paris to take the Presidency of a large female college. In this college were educated some of the most famous belles of the Blue Grass region. Prof. Henderson was a graduate of Exeter Academy and of Yale University, and was the author of a number of text books. He married one of his pupils, Jane Elizabeth Moore, whose father was an influential man of Cynthiana, Ky.

H. A. M. Henderson completed his education at the Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, and then, intending to enter the laws, went to the Cincinnati Law School. He also studied in the office of United States Senator Garrett Davis at Paris, but his inclinations were toward theology and literature, and under Bishop Kavanaugh he was ordained in the Methodist ministry. He took charge near Demopolis, Ala., and while there met and married Susan Watkins Vaughan, daughter of Dr. Alfred Gooden Vaughan, a physician and planter.

Soon after the Civil War broke out he organized the Twenty-eighth Alabama Regiment, of which he became Colonel. Dr. Henderson's prime object in entering the army of the Confederacy was not to fight for the disruption of the union and certainly not for the perpetuation of slavery. He was always an advocate of the abolishment of slavery, as was his wife, who inherited from her father much cotton land and slaves. His great aim was to do what he could on the very scene of war to soften its inevitable horrors and minister to the men.

Dr. Henderson was a relative of Jefferson Davis, and after two years in the field he was, on request assigned to the Department of Exchange of Prisoners of War.

During this service he exchanged about 35,000 men. Among the most cherished possessions of Dr. Henderson were thousands of letters from Union soldiers expressing gratitude for kindness he had extended to them while he was in charge of them. His headquarters were at Cahaba, Ala., near Selma.

While in the field Dr. Henderson was in many engagements, and rose to the rank of Brigadier General.

After the war he was for a time editor of the newspaper, the New Era, at Demopolis, Ala., in which he advocated forgetfulness of the war, and did what he could then, as he did ever afterward, to wipe out sectional lines and feeling.

Returning to Kentucky he held charges in the Methodist church at Frankfort and Lexington and in the early seventies was elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Kentucky which office he held for two terms.

While Superintendent of Public Instruction he wrote many papers and delivered numerous addresses on educational topics, and besides promoted the publication by his department of a work on school architecture that had a marked influence in bettering the physical plant of schools of Kentucky. He was also Professor of Literature at the Kentucky Military Institute.

During this period he took an active interest in Freemasonry and eventually became Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, a position he held for years. He was a Knight Templar and a Scottish Rite Mason, Southern Jurisdiction. He was long editor of the Kentucky Freemason and was influential in establishing the Masonic Home.

Dr. Henderson was also interested greatly in Odd Fellowship and besides contributing much to its literature became Grand Master of the Order in Kentucky.

ALL WRONG.

The Mistake is Made by Many Paris Citizens.

Don't mistake the cause of back ache.
To be cured you must know the cause.

If the pain comes from sick kidneys. You must help the kidneys.
A resident of this vicinity shows you how.

J. T. Gardner, E. Main St., Carlisle, Ky., says: "I had a great deal of trouble from disordered kidneys, in fact, some years ago my case was said to be incurable. During recent years my back became very weak and lame and ached almost constantly. The worst annoyance, however, was too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. Rheumatic twinges in my hips and loins also bothered me and at times were so acute that it was hard for me to walk. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box and had taken them only a short time when I felt a great deal better. Continued use soon entirely relieved me. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a valuable kidney remedy and worthy of my highest endorsement."

Youtsey Petition.

Another movement is afoot to secure the pardon or parole of Henry Youtsey from the penitentiary at Frankfort, where he is confined, charged with complicity in the murder of William Goebel.

A petition is being circulated among the citizens of Newport and is being signed by both Republicans and Democrats. Miss Bratt, a school teacher of Cold Spring, Ky., and Captain James McArthur, of Dayton, are behind the movement. The petition, which is signed by hundreds of the county's most prominent men, will be presented to Governor James B. McCreary early this week.

The Same Old Story.

"Business men all over the country are expressing complete confidence in the Democratic House. They are not being fooled by the old bugaboo about 'Democratic Success meaning business depression.' I am familiar with how the Democratic leaders feel about this, and the leaders and the majority of the party are conservative. The tariff will be revised downward, but it will be done conservatively, and without disturbing business conditions unnecessarily. Democrats realize that business men have rights which must be protected."

This statement by Congressman John H. Rothermel, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Committee of Expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor, is endorsed by all the Democrats in Congress. Mr. Rothermel's home is in Reading, Pennsylvania, which is in the heart of the Pennsylvania manufacturing section.

Evidence is multiplying that business men do not fear Democratic success in 1912, and that, on the contrary, they will welcome it. This is due almost wholly, the House leaders say, to the business like way in which the Democrats have handled affairs since they were placed in control of the lower house of Congress a year ago. The steel trust, which would have more reason than any other trust to be suspicious of Democratic success, is thriving as never before at this season of the year, and the customary holiday let up of twelve days was reduced to two. Early in January, it is said, the steel mills all over the country will be working up to 90 percent of capacity. Blast furnaces, long idle, have resumed operations, and the steel corporation confidently expects 1912 to be the banner year of its history.

The same story of increased activity is told by the railroads. The New York, New Haven and Hartford, which last spring laid off several thousand men, lately has taken them all back, and many more besides. The shops at Hartford, the company officials say, will be busier during the coming year than they have been for four years back. All the big railroads have placed big orders for new equipment, a recent order of the New York Central alone calling for an expenditure of $23,000,000. All of them are working their men to capacity.

Republican orators who expect to fool the voters with the old scare about Democratic success meaning business depression are going to have both hands full from now on.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORYA NAVAL VICTORY WITHOUT BLOODSHED.

By A. W. MACY.

In 1778 Captain Rathburne, commanding a little American vessel with twenty-five men and twelve four-pound guns, swooped down upon the island of New Providence with its nest of Tories and its British garrison. With a quick dash he landed, seized the forts, raised the American flag, released some American prisoners, and captured six British vessels. A privateer of sixteen guns lay at anchor in the port, and a British sloop-of-war hovered outside; but they were too surprised to do anything. The Tories armed themselves and attempted to capture Rathburne and his men, but changed their minds when he threatened to burn the town. He held the place two days. Then he spiked the guns, carried off the arms and ammunition, burned two of the captured ships and sailed away with the other four. Nor lost he a single man.

ARE MICROBES IN YOUR
SCALP.It Has Been Proved that Microbes
Cause Baldness.

Professor Unna of Hamburg, Germany, and Dr. Sabourand, the leading French dermatologist, discovered that a microbe causes baldness. Their theory has time and again been amply verified through research experiments carried on under the observation of eminent scientists. This microbe lodges in the Sebium, which is the natural hair oil, and when permitted to flourish it destroys the hair follicles and in time the pores entirely close, and the scalp gradually takes on a shiny appearance. When this happens there is no hope of the growth of hair being revived.

We have a remedy which will, we honestly believe, remove dandruff, exterminate the microbe, promote good circulation in the scalp and around the hair roots, tighten and revitalize the hair roots, and overcome baldness, so long as there is any life left in the hair roots.

We back up this statement with our own personal guarantee that this remedy called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will be supplied free of all costs to the user if it fails to do as we state.

It will frequently help to restore gray and faded hair to its original color, providing loss of color has been caused by disease; yet it is in no sense a dye. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic accomplishes these results by aiding in making every hair root, follicle and pigment gland strong and active, and by stimulating a natural flow of coloring pigment through out the hair cells.

We exact no obligations or promises—we simply ask you to give Rexall "93" Hair Tonic a thorough trial and if not satisfied tell us and we will refund the money you paid us for it. Two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it in Paris only at our store—The Rexall Store. G. S. Varden & Son.

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A BAND OF PLUCKY EXPLORERS.

By A. W. MACY.

That was a plucky little band of explorers who, on May 24, 1869, under the leadership of one-armed Major Powell, plunged into the canyon of Green river, where the Union Pacific railway crosses it, determined to follow the river to its junction with the Grand, and then follow the Colorado river until it emerges on the lowlands of southern California. They knew what it meant—a perilous journey of more than a thousand miles, through dark canyons a mile or more in depth, over whirling rapids, through raging torrents and past yawning chasms. It took them over three months to make the journey, but they made it; seven of the ten explorers and four of the six boats emerging in safety. This journey, by reason of the knowledge gained and the results which followed, may be regarded as the beginning of the great conservation movement.

THEIR DAY OFF

"What!" cried the tall girl and the short girl simultaneously and unbelievably.

"Yes," insisted the fat man and the thin man, likewise in chorus.

"If you are going on this merry little jaunt into the country you will have to rise with the lark," explained the thin man, "because the car leaves down town at nine o'clock."

"Oh, well, it isn't as if we couldn't do it," said the tall girl, heroically. So the next morning the four of them caught the electric car.

There had been a sudden faint drizzle of rain, but as they whizzed on past the last cottages on the prairie west of town the sun bobbed out again. The level country was a rich green and the sky was very blue.

"I feel," said the fat man, as though I were threatened with a good time today."

"I have exactly the same feeling," said the thin man.

After a time the level country was succeeded by country that was broken and rolling. There were glimpses of brooks with the willows trailing yellow-green fingers in the water and clumps of maples and sycamores putting out glistening young leaves. Some grazing cattle threw up their heads and switched their tails and a scared horse galloped to the farther end of a meadow as the car shot by.

Through the open car windows came the persistent, cheerful melody of meadow larks. The tall girl had mild hysterics when she actually saw two of the little songsters balancing on a fence rail. When the short girl spied a real robin excitement ran high.

In some of the neat yards of farmhouses there were little round patches of tulips in bloom and the bushes covered with golden flowers whose name no human being remembers. Villages decorated with gorgeous country clubs and plain villages in their natural state of simplicity fled by. The streets were full of people enjoying the remarkable spring day.

They were at the end of the electric line before they knew it and got a survey and two white horses, one of which seemed tame and one savage, because it had a wall eye and rolled it.

"Excuse me," said the tall girl, "but as none of us knows how to drive I shall feel far safer if I hold the lines myself. Driving will occupy my mind so that I shan't have time to worry about what may happen. I am positive that the wall-eyed horse doesn't like us. No doubt we'll have a runaway!"

"That being the case," said the thin man, "I will sit in the back seat, where egress from the doomed vehicle is easiest. I am great on backward somersaults!"

It was noon and much warmer. A big white butterfly floated along the roadside and yellow dandelions speckled the grass. Some freshly plowed land sent forth its rich earthy fragrance, and in one farmyard six sprawly little colts stumbled up against their mothers and stared. The world was very new to them. A bunch of fat pigs squealed and galloped away with their absurd rocking-horse gait. Presently by a gray rail fence appeared a flock of sheep, sadly in need of laundering. Among them were a dozen lambs with funny black legs, looking as though they had waded through ink.

"Stop the horses!" commanded the fat man. Then he waved his hands at the flock. "Gambol, little lambs," he ordered. "Gambol, consarn you!"

And they did. If you have never seen infant lambs with stick-up ears and stiff black legs shooting out at all angles, just as though they had never heard of the theory of gravitation, flitting over the green, you have lived in vain!

Like most things in life the horses did not act as had been expected. The wall-eyed one plodded along steadily, but every time it turned a corner the tame one ran away. The driver got excited and hunted up corners just to convince herself of the truth of this, but still the tame steed invariably ran. All these corners of course had to be negotiated on the return trip, so the ride was rather abrupt in spots.

After dinner at a hotel they took the electric car again and rode along the bank of the river with fishermen fishing and aspiring canoes shooting out from unexpected spots, past foamy dams and clumps of woodland, past high hills crowded with rich men's country mansions overlooking miles of river valley and farm land and past little nooks in the rocky hills sheltering bungalows and summer cottages.

Finally they turned about and took a car back to Chicago. Suddenly a jagged lightning flash ripped the sky, there was a thunder crash and the April rain stormed down. It blotted out the brooks and trees and woodlands and turned the car window gray. It found little cracks in the car roof and dripped down into the collar of the fat man and on the airy sleeves of the short girl, but nobody cared. They laughed as they had laughed all day.

Then it cleared, and in the dim quiet of the sunset they whizzed away from the green and gold peace of the sunshiny country back to Chicago, into the racket and garish lights and bumping cars and hurrying automobiles and nervous rushing people and hard stone pavements.

"Well, it was a pleasant day," said one of the four.

"And tomorrow," said another of them, "begins the same old grind!"

"The Pink Lady" at Lexington.

When Klaw and Erlanger's brilliant musical comedy, "The Pink Lady" comes to the Lexington Opera house for three performances, beginning Friday, January 5, playgoers throughout this section will see an attraction that has aroused more interest than anything which has ever been introduced to the American stage in ten years as far as musical comedy productions are concerned. It has just closed a years run in New York where it broke every known record at the New Amsterdam Theatre which has long been known as the house of records. When it is remembered that the late Richard Mansfield played his most memorable engagement in this theatre and "The Merry Widow" had its sensational run there as did "Mme. Sherry" and other wonderful hits the record of "The Pink Lady" is all the more astonishing.

The piece is just a year old and has been seen in less than ten cities of the country so far which is a sure indication that local playgoers will appreciate the opportunity of seeing it thus early in its brilliant career. The prices for the night performances are from 50 cents to $2.00 and the matinee from 25 cents to $2.00. A number from here will attend the performances.

Scene from "A Girl of the Mountains" at The Paris Grand, Tuesday, January 9.

THEATRICAL."A GIRL OF THE MOUNTAINS."

A new version by Lem B. Parker of his beautiful society drama "A Girl of the Mountains," will be presented at The Paris Grand on Tuesday Jan. 9. The natural gaiety and humor prevailing in this play is altogether delightful. It has, furthermore, all the qualities that distinguish good drama from bad and every detail consistent with each character, is carefully taken care of; therefore, one acts with and enjoys the characters the intense situation that follow one another from beginning to end. It is a modern love story of New York society life and it keeps its hearers up to the highest pitch of interest and excitement. The play develops the theme that love is the mainstay of life, outweighing all considerations, even that of a past. Mr. O. E. Wee has engaged a splendid cast and a magnificent scenic display will be offered. Prices 25 cents 35 cents and 50 cents.

Buys Lexington Residence.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Rogers, of this city, purchased of E. A. Ford of Lexington, yesterday his residence on East Maxwell street. Mrs. Rogers, it is said, will move to Lexington in the near future to reside permanently.

Arm Broken.

While practicing on the horizontal bars in the gymnasium of the Paris Public School Tuesday afternoon James Bradley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley, fell to the floor breaking his right arm between the wrist and elbow.

Will Reorganize.

The Baldwin Patking Co., which suspended operations a few weeks ago is likely to resume within a short time. At a recent meeting of the stockholders, Messrs. Thos. J. Judy, G. W. Wyatt, Chas. C. Clark, M. R. Jacoby, C. M. Thomas, C. Arnsperger and Dr. F. L. Lapsley were re-elected as the Board of Directors for the ensuing year. A proposition was submitted for the reorganization of the concern which will likely be adopted at the next meeting of the officials of the company.

Chief of Police Makes Report.

Chief of Police J. C. Elgin has filed his report for the year just ended with Mayor J. T. Hinton. The report shows that during the year of 1911 a total number of 323 arrests were made, an aggregate sum of $924.25 being collected for fines, while the sum of $456.50 was worked out. The report of each officer on the force is as follows:

Link—Arrests, 177; cash collected, $213; worked out, $139.50.
Bishop—Arrests, 41; cash collected, $156.75; worked out, $9.50.
Thomas—Arrests, 87; cash collected, $186.50; worked out, $122.
Elgin—Arrests, 118; cash collected, $365; worked out, $135.

Insurance Paid.

Mr. L. Wollstien, local secretary of Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, yesterday paid to Mrs. Henry French $1,000, the value of the insurance policy held on the life of her husband, who was killed on the morning of December 13 in the L. & N. yards in this city.

Fiscal Court in Session.

The regular meeting of the Bourbon Fiscal Court was held yesterday, Judge Denis Dundon presiding and Magistrates L. J. Fretwell, E. P. Thomason, J. J. Redmon, O. B. Lloyd, B. F. Stipp and G. K. Redmon present.

County Treasurer Bedford was ordered to borrow $5,000 from the Garth Fund to be added to the turnpike fund and execute a note payable on January 1, 1913.

County Attorney Batterton and Squire Fretwell were appointed a committee by the court to confer with Pat Collins, who has the contract for the construction of the Silas pike, in an effort to have him complete the construction or give up the contract.

The report of Turnpike Supervisor Redmon was read, approved and ordered made of record. The sum of $800 was appropriated for use in repairing the turnpikes during the month of January.

Squires E. P. Thomason and J. J. Redmon were appointed a committee to purchase a rock crusher, rock bin, traction engine and water wagon for the county use.

Claims to the amount of $4,587.97 were allowed and ordered paid, when court adjourned.

Dies After Short Illness.

Mr. John B. Grimes, aged 62 years, died at his home on Higgins avenue in this city after an illness of about a week.

For about 12 years Mr. Grimes had been in the employ of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, serving in the capacity of night watch at the local freight office until a few months ago when he was transferred to the passenger depot, acting in the capacity of special officer.

About a week ago Mr. Grimes suffered an attack of grippe, from the effects of which he was confined to his bed, growing gradually weaker, and other complications arising which caused his death at 10 o'clock Tuesday evening.

He is survived by five children—four daughters and one son—Mrs. Leer Stout, and Miss Georgia Grimes, of Paris, Mrs. E. P. Armstrong, of Charles City, Mo., Mrs. W. L. Dawson, of Campbellsville, Ky., and Mr. William Grimes, of this city.

The funeral services will be held at his late residence Saturday at 2 p. m., conducted by Dr. B. M. Shive of the Presbyterian church, assisted by Elder J. T. Sharrard. The remains will be interred in the family lot in the Paris cemetery.

The pall-bearers will be Lawrence Van Hook, J. J. McCintock, M. F. Kenney, Dr. J. T. Brown, Lee Beall and W. H. Harris.

Open Session at Public School.

The first open session of the Literary Society of the Paris Public School will be held in the auditorium of the school building Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. An excellent program has been arranged and the public is extended a cordial invitation to attend. A debate between the Freshman Class of the High School and the Senior Class of the Grammar School, will be an interesting part of the program, which is as follows:

Final Adjustment Sale!

The Last Stage of Our Re-organization! Final Payment Must Be Made to the Retiring Members of the Firm January 15th, and We Therefore Inaugurate This Sale to Raise Necessary Cash Immediately,

So as to be in entire readiness to cope with the great crowds that will be attracted by this very important event, our store was closed on Monday' January 1, to make the necessary re-arrangement of stock and other preparations.

Last June we announced to the public a re-organization of this store brought about by the retirement of Mr. Henry Kaufman and Mr. Benjamin Straus from this firm, Mr. Simon Wolf, Mr. Dolph Wile and Mrs. M. Blumenthal having bought out their interests. Ever since then we have made rapid progress in the work of re-organizing and adjusting the affairs of the firm, until now we come to the point where the actual transfer of interests takes place and final settlement is to be made with Messrs. Kaufman and Straus, January 15th. This means that we must raise within the very short space of 11 days, many thousands of dollars CASH. Or, in other words, we must sell thousands of dollars worth of merchandise every day between now and January 15th. We fully realize that this is a colossal undertaking, requiring the most powerful and drastic resources at our command. The surest, quickest and most powerful way of accomplishing our purpose is to forget prices for the time being and cut prices so phenomenally throughout our stock that the people of Lexington and vicinity will be glad to take the merchandise off our hands and thereby enable us to raise the required sum. Hence, Thousands of Dollars Worth of Fresh, New, Fashionable and Seasonable Merchandise at the Most Extraordinary Reductions in Years! The Greatest Bargains We Have Ever Offered. The savings on high-grade wanted merchandise you can make in this sale are simply phenomenal. They are almost unbelievable, in fact. But we are prepared to convince the most skeptical of the genuineness of our offers. We Have Gone the Limit in Price Reducing! Join the Crowds! Come and Save Money!

The next cotillion will possibly be given on February 14, although no definite date has been definitely decided on.

MATRIMONIAL.

—The marriage of Mr. Woodford C. Daniel and Miss Edith L. Myall was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Myall Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The ring ceremony was used and was very gracefully and beautifully said by Elder Carey E. Morgan.

The bride was gowned in soft white messaline, trimmed in pearls and fringe, with court train. The wedding veil was gracefully caught up with bunches of lilies of the valley.

The only attendant was the bride's cousin, Miss Ethel Johnson, of Millersburg, who wore a pretty gown of pink messaline and carried pink sweet peas. During the ceremony Miss Leavitt sang "All for You," "Because," "Thine Art Mine," and "The Rosary." Miss Betsy Ray played the wedding music.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel left immediately after the ceremony for a short wedding journey and upon their return will go to the home of the groom on the Maysville pike.

The wedding gifts were many and beautiful.

—Mr. Jerry Parrish, of Silver Creek and Miss Lula Wheeler, of Kirsville, were united in marriage at Richmond last week. Mr. Parrish is well known in Paris, having formerly played first base on the Paris base ball team when that club first entered the Blue Grass League. The couple will reside at Peytonville.

—The marriage of Mr. Robert Carpenter and Miss Elizabeth Jones, both of the county, took place Wednesday, Rev. Carey E. Morgan performed the ceremony.

—A marriage license was issued yesterday to Mr. Frank M. Dorsey and Miss Bessie McKee.

Special Attraction at the Comet.

The management of the Comet Theatre promises one of the greatest sensations of the century this afternoon and night and Saturday afternoon and night. Prof. W. A. Wellman, the well known criminologist will give a complete and forcible lecture on the Ohio State penitentiary, illustrated with fifty wonderful slides, embracing the electric chair, an electrocution, the prison demon, the cell houses, escaped prisoners, for whom rewards are offered, holiday celebration, the old gallows, the death cage, photos of notorious criminals; cell from which Gen. John Morgan escaped in 1863, and numerous others.

This will be by far the most remarkable exhibition and lecture ever seen in Paris, giving as it does a complete insight into the inner workings of the most famous prison in the world. It will be given in addition to the two regular reels of feature pictures which the Comet is running daily. The prices for this engagement will be ten cents, the show lasting for on hour and fifteen minutes.

Miser Makes His Landlord Administrator of Secreted Estate Which Proves a Revelation—Eccentric Bachelor Had Concealed Fortune.

Enid, Okla.—Had it not been for the honesty and high character of Gerhard Theilen, a farmer living nine miles northwest of Enid, the fact that $11,600.05 cash and $2,000 in securities had been secreted in his home by C. F. Schulze, an eccentric bachelor who resided with him, would not have been disclosed following the death of Schulze. Theilen could have kept the money and no one would have been the wiser.

Theilen often had been promised by Schulze that what property he possessed would be left to him at death. But when death came to the former German soldier Theilen did not examine his property until he had conferred with an attorney. When Theilen was made the executor of the estate he called neighbors to accompany him into the room which Schulze had occupied.

Schulze died of pneumonia at 76 years of age. It was believed by Theilen that he had money hidden in his room. The $4 a week he paid for board had been forthcoming regularly in currency. Schulze was reticent and never spoke of his affairs even to the family except when he said he wanted the Theilens to have his property.

Following the death, Theilen came to Enid to consult attorneys on what should be done about the burial and disposition of the property. He was legally sworn as administrator and then he asked the help of two neighbors in search of the room.

Though it was believed that Schulze was well to do, what was found was revelation. The room where Schulze lived a hermit's life eleven years was searched and the result was the finding of $11,600.05 in cash wrapped in old socks, sewed into vests, hidden in secret drawers and in every conceivable place. Every article of clothing yielded its treasure of gold coins or gold certificates. Every nook and corner seemed to conceal gold, every spot of the room seemed fraught with some secret known only to the dead soldier who had amassed money but who had only strangers to care for him.

For years Schulze had worn a home-made muslin vest lined with $20 gold certificates of a value of $4,360. A vest found in a closet contained $1,910 in gold pieces. Old German socks had been used as gold sacks. Money seemed to be everywhere. Combination locks were frequently encountered in the explorations of the old man's effects. Hidden in a false bottom in an old hand-made chest was $4,260 in $20 gold pieces.

Besides the money, notes aggregating $2,000 were found in unconceivable places. Letters showing that the old man had negotiated loans in Texas were also found.

Arrests Thief on Visit.

Wabash, Ind.—Mrs. Edward Beck of Peru, Ind., captured a thief while visiting in this city and took him to the police station. Some time ago she hired a man to help her clean house. The man worked a little while and then stole Mrs. Beck's watch and left. Mrs. Beck saw the man on the street here and recognized him. Not seeing any policeman, she made the arrest herself.

FREE SAMPLE CURED OLD PERSON'S BOWEL TROUBLE

One of the most remarkable proofs of the unusual laxative merit contained in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is that it is effective not only in people in the prime of life, but at the extremes of ages. As many letters are received from mothers regarding the cures of children, as from men and women of sixty, seventy and eighty years of age. It must be truly a wonderful laxative.

In the cure of constipation and bowel trouble in old people it has no equal. It corrects the constipation, dispels the headache, biliousness, gas, drowsiness after eating, etc. People advancing in years should see to it that their bowels move freely, and if they do not take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You can prolong your life by healthy bowel action. Clogged bowels invite disease. Women about to pass the menstrual period cannot do better than use Syrup Pepsin several times a week until the system has settled to its future condition.

Among the strongest supporters of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are Mr. W. G. Zorn of New Decatur, Ala., and Mr. George S. Spaulding of the National Soldiers' Home, Kansas, both elderly men. The regular size bottles can be bought of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar, but a free sample bottle can be had by sending your address to the doctor.

The Pool of Flame

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The story opens at Monte Carlo with Col. Terence O'Rourke in his hotel. O'Rourke, a military fre lance and something of a gambler, is dressing for appearance in the restaurant below when the sound of a girl's voice singing attracts his attention. Looking out on the balcony he sees a beautiful girl who suddenly disappears. He rushes to the corridor to see a neatly gowned form enter the elevator and pass from sight.

CHAPTER II.—O'Rourke's mind is filled with thoughts of the girl, and when he goes to the gaming table he allows his remarkable winnings to accumulate indifferently. He notices two men watching him. One is the Hon. Bertie Glynn, while his companion is Viscount Des Trebes, a noted duelist. When O'Rourke leaves the table the viscount tells him he represents the French government and that he has been directed to O'Rourke as a man who would undertake a secret mission.

CHAPTER II.

After that bitter disappointment his interest in his personal appearance dwindled to the negligible. In a black temper with himself (whom alone he blamed for the deception to which he had fallen too facile a victim) he searched blindly for a fresh tie, found it somehow, and knotted it round his collar in the most haphazard fashion imaginable. Then he shrugged a dress coat upon his shoulders and marched forth to dine.

In this humor he propelled himself with determination into the public restaurant of the establishment, and, oblivious to the allure of many pairs of bright eyes that brightened all too readily to challenge his, insisted upon a table all to himself, and dined in solitary grandeur, comporting himself openly as a morose and misunderstood person, and to his waiter with a manner so near rude that the latter began almost to respect him.

After some time he was disgusted to discover that he felt better. An impulse toward analysis led him to probe the psychology of the change, with the result that he laid the blame for it at the door—or the neck—of a half-bottle of excellent burgundy. So he ordered another, and, resolutely dismissing from his mind the woman who had no right whatever to be able to sing a certain song the way she had, set his wits to work on the riddle of Tomorrow.

To a man whose trade was fighting, the world just then was a most distressful place, too peaceful entirely. Over his coffee the adventurer nodded in despair and frowned in disgust; then rousing, he summoned the waiter and paid his reckoning with a secret grin at himself, a fifty-franc note and a gesture which splendidly obliterated altogether every trace of suspicion that he intended to take back any part of the change due him.

Trimming and lighting a cigar, he reviewed the restaurant with a listless eye which discovered no one of his acquaintance; therefore, with neither haste nor waste of time, he rose and betook himself to the Casino—that is, to the one place where one may feel certain of encountering, sooner or later, everybody who is anybody within the bounds of the principality.

This night, more particularly than on any preceding it, now that he had made up his mind to seek betterment of his fortunes elsewhere, he played heedlessly, little concerned with the fate of what money he had about him. He had set aside a reserve fund sufficient to settle his hotel bill and carry him a considerable distance into the unknown which he was resolved to beard, and was resigned to lose the remainder. It was a tenet of his creed of fatalism that chance seldom favored him when he had money in his pockets; the tide of his affairs must be at its lowest ebb ere it turned. His policy then was obvious—childishly plain: he must fling to the winds all that which he had.

Now never was there a man who played to lose who didn't win his point. Colonel O'Rourke's case can be cited as no exception to this rule. Elbow to elbow on one side with an artless old lady from Terre Haute, who risked her minims with the ferocious jealousy of a miser making an unsecured loan, on the other with an intent little Austrian gambler absorbed in the workings of his "system," the adventurer scattered gold upon the numbered and illuminated gridiron as unconcernedly as though he had been matching shillings, and saw the coins gathered in by the greedy rake as often as the little ivory ball ceased to chatter on the wheel.

For the better part of an hour this continued. And the little group of sycophants which had gathered behind his chair to watch his play insensibly dissipated. A whisper ran through the ranks of the habitués that the luck of the mad Irishman had turned; and forthwith he ceased to be an object of interest. Only the little Austrian, having risked the number of stakes prescribed by his system for one evening's play, put away his notebook and pencil, surrendering his place to another. He turned, his eyes, protruding, fixed upon the gambler's chair, unable to resist the fascination of watching a man who could at once lose money and retain his composure.

At length, inexpressibly bored and too impatient to defer the inevitable by niggardly wagers, O'Rourke ransacked his pockets and placed the proceeds—several hundred francs—I am as ignorant of the amount as he was indifferent to it—upon the red.

There fell a lull, the croupier holding the wheel to permit an unbaked cub of Chicago millions to cover the cloth with stakes too numerous for his half-developed intelligence to keep count of; and the adventurer shifted in his seat, reviewing the assemblage. For some moments, through the mysterious working of that sixth sense which men are pleased vaguely to denominate intuition, he had been subconsciously aware of being the object of some person's fixed regard, that somebody was not only watching, but weighing him. He sought the source of this sensation and, for a little time, sought it unsuccessfully. Annoyed, he persisted. He heard the croupier's mechanical "Rein ne va plus," followed by the whirring of the wheel, but cared so little that he would not turn to watch the outcome. Only an exclamation of the Austrian's appraised him of the fact that red had won. He glanced listlessly round to see the money doubled, and let it rest, turning back to his survey of the throng. A moment later his attention became fixed upon two men who stood in the doorway, looking toward him. Again the wheel buzzed, the ball clattered and was still. The word rouge among others in the announcement told him that again he had won; this time, however, he did not turn, but, frowning in speculation, stared back at the two.

Stared? Indeed and he did just that. If it was impertinent, sure and were they not staring at him? And who should gainsay an O'Rourke the right to stare at anybody, be he king or commoner? Furthermore, who might these men be, and what their interest in himself?

The one was tall and slender, saturnine; an elegant, owing as much to the art of his tailor and upholsterer as to his own indisputable, native distinction; a Frenchman—at least, of a type unquestionably Gallic. His face was very pale, his fine, pointed mustache very precise, jaw square, forehead high, eyes deep and dark beneath brows heavy; level and black, manner marked by a repose almost threatening in its impassibility.

His companion was shorter of stature, a younger man by at least ten years, rather stout and very nervous, with a fresh red face marred by hallmarks of dissipation; British, every inch of him.

"That, I'm thinking," mused O'Rourke, "will be the Honorable Bertie Glynn. Faith, he looks the part, at least; 'tis just that kind—unbred, unbred, without brains or real stamina—that would run through a half-million sterling inside a year."

But the other?

"Monsieur," the little Austrian stammered excitedly in his ear, "for you the red had doubled a fourth time."

"Thank ye," replied O'Rourke without moving. "Twill turn up seven, this run."

The system-gambler subsided, petrified.

But the other? O'Rourke continued to probe his memory. Something in the man's personality was curiously reminiscent. . . . Of a sudden he remembered. The Frenchman, had been pointed out to him, years ago, in Paris, as a principal in a Boulevard scandal which had terminated in a duel—a real duel, in which he had been victorious. He was accustomed to anticipate such an outcome of his affair of honor, however; that was why he had been named to O'Rourke; Des Trebes (that was the name; the Viscount des Trebes) was a duelist of international repute.

"Monsieur," the agitated voice fluttered in his ear, "you have won yet again—for the sixth time!"

"Let it stand for the seventh, mon ami."

Why should Des Trebes be watching him so openly, so pointedly? As he watched he became aware that these two, the Frenchman and the Englishman, were not alone; detached though their attitude was, they were evidently of a party of ladies and gentlemen whose gay, chattering group formed their background.

"Monsieur, the seventh turn!"

"Yes, yes."

"Rein ne va plus," croaked the croupier.

One of the ladies turned to speak to the Honorable Mr. Glynn. Smiling, he nodded, and offered her an arm. She lingered, addressing Des Trebes. The latter bowed, lifted his shoulders and laughed lightly, plainly excusing himself. A general movement took place in the party; it began to disintegrate, men and women pairing off, all moving at leisure toward the lobby. Des Trebes alone remained. O'Rourke could see that the personnel of the gathering was largely British. He recognized Lady Plinlimmon, whose yacht (he had heard casually) had arrived in the harbor that morning. Evidently this was her party. Another woman's figure caught his attention; her back was turned, but she had an air, a graceful set of the shoulders, an individual pride and spirit in the poise of her head, that O'Rourke could have sworn he knew. He was conscious that he flushed suddenly, that his heart was pounding. He made as if to rise and follow, but was prevented, almost forced back by a hand which the Austrian in his feverish interest had unconsciously placed on the Irishman's shoulder.

"Monsieur, monsieur!" he gasped, his eyes, protruding, fixed upon the wheel. Heads of sweat glistened on his forehead. He trembled as though his own fortunes hung on the change.

Impressed, O'Rourke could not forbear to linger, to cast a reluctant glance at the table.

The size of his pile of gold and notes on the red was a somewhat startling sight to him. His breath stopped in his throat. The ivory sphere was rattling over the compartments to its predestined place. What if he were to win? O'Rourke began to calculate mentally how much he had at stake, how much he might win if his careless prediction that red would turn up the seventh time should come true—lost his bearings in a maze of intricate computation and was on the point of abandoning the problem when black was called.

"Great God!" panted the Austrian, withdrawing his hand.

O'Rourke rose. "The fortunes of war, me friend," said he with a laugh so unforced that it sounded unnatural. He strode away hastily, searching the throng in the lobby for her with whom his mind was occupied to the exclusion of all else.

The system-gambler followed him with a stare of incredulous amazement. "What a man!" said he to himself, if half aloud. A second later he added: "What admirable acting!"

But he was mistaken. There was nothing assumed in O'Rourke's air of apathy. He was actually quite indifferent and already preoccupied with his new interest—the pursuit of the woman whose unexpected appearance in Monte Carlo seemed likely to upset all his calculations. The sails of the barque of his fortunes had all his life long been trimmed to the winds of Chance; he was accustomed to seeing them fall flat and flapping, empty just when a venture seemed most propitious. The loss of the money was nothing; the initial amount had been little enough in all conscience, though the major part of all that he possessed; but to him the woman was everything—the world and all.

And now she was gone, had disappeared with her companions! In that instant in which he had turned from her to the table, she had made her escape.

He cursed roundly the weakness that had lost her to him, and passing rapidly through the lobby, left the Casino, pausing before the entrance to look right and left.

There was no sign of what he sought; the party had vanished. And who should say whither?

"Damnation!" he grumbled.

"Monsieur," a voice intruded at his side.

"He turned with a start, annoyed. 'Well?' he demanded curtly, recognizing Des Trebes.

The Frenchman bowed. "I have the honor to address Monsieur le Colonel O'Rourke?"

Reflecting that the man might afford him the information he sought, O'Rourke unbent. "I am he, Monsieur des Trebes."

Surprised, the latter lifted his eyebrows, showing even white teeth in a deprecatory smile. "You know me, monsieur?"

"By sight and reputation only, monsieur."

"I am honored."

"No more than myself, if it comes to that."

The vicomte laughed. "Then I may presume to ask the favor of a word with you?"

"Are ye not having it, monsieur?"

"True. . . . But in private?"

"One moment. Ye can do me a favor, if ye will. Afterwards—"

"I am charmed."

"'Tis not much I'll be asking ye—merely a question or two. Now that gentleman ye were talking with awhile back: isn't he the Honorable Bertie Glynn?"

"The same, monsieur."

"And the lady who spoke to him—"

"Madame Smyth-Herriott, I believe; I know her only slightly."

"Then ye are not of their party?"

"Party?" Des Trebes appeared perplexed. "What party?"

"Why, Lady Plinlimmon's, of course."

"I have not the honor of that lady's acquaintance, monsieur."

"Oh, ye have not? But Mr. Glynn?"

"Is here with me, monsieur—a flying trip. We ran down from Paris but yesterday. Our meeting with Madame Smyth-Herriott was quite accidental."

"Oh, the divvie!" said O'Rourke beneath his breath. Plainly he might expect nothing more helpful from this man; he had jumped prematurely at a baseless conclusion, it seemed. And by now it was much too late to think of further pursuit. "That is all I wished to know, monsieur," he admitted lamely. "There was a lady in the group whom I thought I recognized. I wished to find her, and fancied ye might perhaps direct me. Ye didn't by any chance happen to hear Mrs. Smyth-Herriott say where she was going with Mr. Glynn?"

"Unhappily, no, monsieur."

"Very well then. What can I have the happiness to serve ye in?"

The Frenchman hesitated briefly.

Not Profanity.

The word "dam" is the name of a small coin used in India and of very small value, and is also the name given by tinkers to a small wad of paper put into a hole in tinware when mending it for the purpose of preventing the solder from running through. Both mean of little value, so the expression really means "I don't care the value of a dam."

ed. "Will you not be kind enough to walk with me a little distance, while we converse?"

"Gladly, monsieur."

Des Trebes produced a cigarette case, and together, smoking, the two turned their backs upon the casino and wandered off along the paths of the raced gardens. Ever descending, they came at length to the secluded, little lighted and less frequented portions of the grounds which border the waterfront, and presently sat side by side upon a bench, looking out over the harbor. Then and then only did Des Trebes approach his subject—something which he had until now studiously avoided, distracting the not over-patient Irishman by a falling fire of banalities.

"I dare say, Colonel O'Rourke," he suggested abandoning his mother tongue for excellent English—"I dare say you are wondering—"

"I am that."

"I feared so. But it was essential that we should speak in privacy."

"Yes—"

"But before I proceed, may I put you a question or two bordering, perhaps, upon impertinence, yet not so conceived?"

"What a long-winded beggar!" O'Rourke commented mentally. "As for that," said he aloud, "'tis impossible for me to calculate the impertinence until 'tis put to me. Eh?"

"Believe me, sir, I am anxious only to avoid indiscretion. It is the question of your identity alone. I desire only to be assured that you are the Colonel O'Rourke I take you to be."

"My faith! And who else would I be, now?"

"There's the bare possibility that two of the same name might exist."

"'Tis so bare that 'tis fairly incredible," chuckled the Irishman. "But fire away."

"I am not mistaken in assuming that I address the Colonel Terence O'Rourke who was at one time a party to the petit Lemercler's mad Empire du Sahara project and who later married Lemercler's widow, Madame la Princesse de Grandlieu?"

O'Rourke took a long breath and looked his questioner up and down. "Ye have a very pretty taste in the matters of impertinences," he said gravely. "However, let that pass. I'm the same man."

"A thousand pardons. Caution in matters such as this—A shrug completed the thought most eloquently. "You can give me proofs of your identity, then?"

"Proofs!" O'Rourke got to his feet. "Believe me, monsieur, ye have all the proof I'm willing to give ye, and that's my last word. If ye find it insufficient, why, then—"

"Pardon!" Des Trebes interrupted, rising. "I am myself more than content. But the Government of France—" "The Government of France!" O'Rourke whistled.

"Is more exacting than I. It knows a certain Colonel O'Rourke and him alone does it need."

"The divvie it does! And what will it be wanting with me?"

"I can say at present no more than that I represent Government in an affair demanding secrecy and dispatch. I have a certain diplomatic mission, to discharge, and shall have need, monsieur, of a man strong, bold, venturesome, willing to undertake a long and perhaps perilous journey."

Had Des Trebes been inspired he could have formulated no speech better calculated to intrigue the Irishman; the merest echo of its import would have fired his hearer's fancy. He added: "And I am authorized to retain for that purpose, should I be fortunate enough to find him unengaged, a certain Colonel Terence O'Rourke."

"Say no more, monsieur. 'Tis enough. 'Secrecy—dispatch—a long and perilous journey!' Faith I'm just your man!"

"You have no other business of the moment?"

"None whatever."

"Then I am indeed fortunate. And now, I presume, you will no longer object to satisfying me as to your identity."

"Not in the least. Although, to be candid, monsieur, I'm not in the habit of carrying me Bertillon record about me. But if ye'll have the goodness to accompany me to the Orient, over there, I'll put your mind at ease before ye can say knife."

Des Trebes nodded. "I should be delighted, but unfortunately—" he snapped the case of his watch—"I have an appointment with a conferee. May we fix a time—in half an hour, say—when it will be convenient for you to have me call at the Orient?"

Germs Spread in Skin

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema. A 25c bottle will prove this to you.

We have had experience with many remedies for skin trouble but have never seen such remarkable cures as those from D. D. D. Prescription. Instant relief from the very first application.

We are so confident that D. D. D. will reach your case that it will cost you nothing if the very first full size bottle fails to make good every claim. If you have skin trouble of any kind, we certainly advise you to drop in and investigate the merits of D. D. D. anyway. We know that D. D. D. will help you.

G. S. Varden & Son.

ITCH! ITCH! ITCH!

Scratch and rub—rub and scratch—until you feel as if you could almost tear the burning skin from your body—until it seems as if you could no longer endure these endless days of awful torture—those terrible nights of sleepless agony.

Then—a few drops of D. D. D., the famous Eczema Specific and, Oh! what relief! The itch gone instantly! Comfort and rest at last!

D. D. D. is a simple external wash that cleanses and heals the inflamed skin as nothing else can. A recognized specific for Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum or any other skin trouble.

We can give you a full size bottle of the genuine D. D. D. remedy for $1.00 and if the very first bottle fails to give relief it will not cost you a cent.

We also can give you a sample bottle for 25 cents. Why suffer another day when you can get D. D. D.?

Busy Embroiderers. As early as 1773 over 6,000 women were engaged in stitching the fine embroideries which made St. Gall famous even in those early days. The number had increased by the beginning of 1890 to 30,000, the industry having extended to Baden, Wurtemberg, Bavaria, western Austria and all the country about Lake Constance.

Slow Progress. A friend met a youthful and lazy author on the street.

"How is your novel getting along?" he asked.

"Oh, I've begun it," answered the author proudly. The two did not meet again for several weeks. At the next encounter, the friend again asked:

"Well, how's your novel?"

The author paused a moment.

"Let me see," he said, "where did I tell you I was in it when I saw you the last time?"

"You said you'd begun it," answered the friend.

"Well—I've still begun it," confessed the author, guiltily.

Platinum.

Referring to platinum, books say that "this metal has never yet been successfully deposited as a protecting coating to other metals" and add "the metal to be plated must be coppered."

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema, I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

Trial bottle 25 cents, enough to prove the merit of this wonderful remedy.

We can also give you a full size bottle for $1.00 on our absolute guarantee that if this very first bottle fails to give you relief it will cost you nothing.

The Ideal Reading Lamp

Opticians agree that the light from a good oil lamp is easier on the eyes than any other artificial light.

The Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made.

It gives a strong, yet soft, white light; and it never flickers. It preserves the eyesight of the young; it helps and quickens that of the old.

You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for other lamps, but you cannot get better light than the low-priced Rayo gives.

Made of solid brass, nickel-plated. Easily lighted, without removing shade or chimney. Easy to clean and rewick.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

QUEER DOINGS AT BALTIMORE.

By A. W. MACY.
There were some queer doings at Baltimore eighty years ago. Witness this from Griffith's "Annals of Baltimore," published in 1833: "December 14 (1829), thirty-seven persons are drawn by one horse, in a car, planned by Mr. Ross Williams, of New Jersey, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at the rate of about ten miles per hour, or as fast as the horse could trot or gallop; which was done in the presence and to the astonishment of a multitude of spectators, who, not having witnessed such an exhibition could scarcely realize the effect." And "Peter Parley's First Book of History," published about the same time, says: "But the most curious thing at Baltimore is the railroad. This consists of iron bars laid along the ground, and made fast so that carriages with small wheels may run along them with facility. In this way, each horse will be able to draw as much as ten horses on a common road. A part of this railroad is already done, and if you choose to take a ride upon it, you may do so. You will mount a carriage something like a stage, and then you will be drawn along by two horses at the rate of twelve miles an hour."

Kill More Than Wild Beasts.

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But good protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back if not satisfied. 25c at Oberdorfer's.

WILLIAMS AGAIN ELECTED

Present Incumbent Chosen by Millersburg Council by Close Vote to 4 to 3.

OTHER OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Treasury Shows Town to Be in Fine Financial Shape—Other Millersburg News.

Ignoring the alleged charges of inefficiency and negligence that had resulted in opposition being brought out against him, Joseph Williams, the present incumbent, was elected town marshal by the Millersburg City Council at its regular meeting Wednesday night over Henry Bowling who held the position prior to the election of Mr. Williams six years ago. The election of Mr. Williams was made possible only by the vote of Mayor Waddell, after the members of the Board had become equally divided between the two candidates, the vote standing three to three, when the Mayor cast the deciding vote.

Interest has centered in the election of the marshal for several days. Mr. Bowling announcing his candidacy about ten days ago, and rumors which received flagrant circulation created a great amount of dissatisfaction and had the effect of producing a warm fight in the Council chamber when that body met.

It was learned Tuesday evening that three of the board, which is composed of six members had pledged themselves to the support of Bowling, but the intensity of the situation increased when it was circulated that the three of the Councilmen had not qualified on or before the first of January, which left the impression that they would have no voice in the election. Judge Dundon, of Paris, set the rumor to rest when he quoted the law on the subject, which was to the effect that a councilman could be sworn in any time prior to the first of January or on the date of the first meeting in the year.

The council assembled at 7:30 o'clock with Mayor Waddell in the chair. A large crowd, anticipating a rather warm fight, had assembled. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and a number of small accounts approved and ordered paid, which was followed by the election of officers.

The election of T. J. Judy as city clerk was made by the unanimous vote of the board as was that of J. H. Burroughs, who was nominated for the office of city treasurer. Both men were elected to succeed themselves, no opposition being presented.

Following the election of these officers the matter of selecting a marshal was taken up and Mr. Henry Bowling was placed in nomination by Councilman J. J. Peed, which received a second from Councilman D. P. Jones. Councilman Rufus Butler put Mr. Williams in nomination, which was seconded by W. A. Butler. A vote was taken which resulted in a tie and Judge Waddell cast the deciding vote in favor of Mr. Williams. The election of Williams resulted in a marked demonstration on the part of the majority of the spectators, many of whom left the city hall before a lively tilt between Councilman W. F. Carpenter and Marshal Williams occurred, in regard to some street work, and hot words passed between them. Mayor Waddell took a hand in the matter and adjusted the affair.

O. H. Collier was elected city assessor and Mayor Waddell announced the appointment of his committees which are as follows: Street Committee—Rufus Butler, W. A. Butler, E. M. Ingles; Finance Committee—W. A. Butler, J. J. Peed, W. F. Carpenter; night Committee—Rufus Butler, W. F. Carpenter and E. M. Ingles; Building Committee—T. P. Waddell, E. M. Ingles, W. F. Carpenter.

An ordinance introduced to reduce the laundry license failed to carry. A summarized report of the city treasurer is as follows: Balance on hand January 1, 1911, $2,799.17; collected from taxes, $2,336.93; licenses, $399.50; miscellaneous, $119.40; total, $5,656.00. The disbursements are as follows: Orders and Warrants, $3,465.07; Balance on hand January 1, 1912, $2,191.93; Total, $5,656.00.

According to City Treasurer Burroughs, more than $1,000 will be added to the city's fund within the next few days from taxes now outstanding which will be collected within a very short period. The city at present is in a better financial condition than at any time within the past six years, considering the vast amount of improvements that have been made. In a few days the electric light plant will be accepted and at that time the city will pay to the Fairbanks-Morse Co., of Cincinnati, O., the sum of $1,300, which from the present statement will leave over $900 in the city treasury.

Except when the saloons existed here and paid a license into the city treasury, has there been a more healthy condition of the city's finances. Judge Waddell and Marshal Williams have both added greatly to the city's fund in the amount of fines assessed and collected. Mr. Williams has saved the city much in superintending the construction of streets, crossings, etc., which prior to the election six years ago, was under the supervision of men employed by the city at a salary of not less than $2.50 per day. The report of the treasurer for the past six years is as follows: 1906, $1,489.80; 1907, $1,049.88; 1908, $899.63; 1909, $1,195.84; 1910, $2,008.07; 1911, $1,86.57; 1912, $2,191.23.

The charges which are registered against Williams grew out of the difficulty a few nights ago in which a negro was shot in the home of Will Washington, and the report was started that not one of the participants in the crap game in which they were engaged were arrested. However it developed that all were taken into custody with the exception of two and in each case they were found in police court. Will Washington, who was conducting the game in the Paris jail awaiting the action of the next grand jury for suffering gassing on his premises.

It is said there exist on the outer edges of town several low dives, but it is impossible to detect any violations of the law that might be going on there, due to the fact that one policeman is insufficient to detect any evil practices before operations are ceased. This is the case in many small towns, where the officers of the law are constantly watched, and their approach tipped off in ample time to remove incriminating evidence.

At regular meeting of Amity Lodge No. 40 F. & A. M. Tuesday night the officers elected a few nights ago were installed. After the installation the incoming Worshipful Master, M. P. Collier, delivered an inaugural address, talking for some time along the line of Masonry and what it stood for. He then pointed out briefly the policy he proposed to pursue during the coming year closing by appointing the stewards and committees, which are as follows: Stewards—Henry Bowling and T. T. Bentley; Committee on Finance—F. F. Hurst, W. M. Miller and D. E. Clarke; Sick and Relief—W. V. Shaw, F. L. Dimmitt and D. P. Jones; Trustees—E. P. Thomson, J. G. Allen and V. L. Barton.

As I am going to leave Millersburg I submit the following property for sale on Saturday, February 3, 1912: One house and lot in Judyville, now occupied by Mr. J. P. Auixer and family. The house is new and in thorough condition, also my storeroom on South Main street, with rooms attached for small family. This property can be bought right.
